

Jeffrey Brody

Chief Human Resources Officer
ManTech International Corporation

Jeff Brody serves as ManTech's Chief Human Resources Officer, responsible for the development, implementation and execution of the company's human resources strategies supporting annual business objectives and its long-range strategic plan.

Mr. Brody is the chief architect for human resources governance and functional excellence. He joined ManTech on June 1, 2017.

His passion for cultivating, harnessing and measuring the impact intellectual capital has on business has resulted in a number of roles where organizations have improved operating results through enhanced talent acquisition practices, leadership succession and development, organization learning strategies, workforce communication strategies and culture building initiatives. As a certified Six Sigma Black Belt, Mr. Brody has applied the art of process re-engineering and continuous improvement to building high performing teams, enhanced executive performance, better defined learning processes and sustained learning outcomes.

Mr. Brody spent 18 years with Northrop Grumman, and his experience also includes work with CGI Group, Alliant Techsystems, Baxter International and the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Having contributed to the development of an MBA case study, Mr. Brody was a visiting executive lecturer for 11 years on the topic of post-merger integration at the University of Virginia's Darden School of Business. He has served on the Board of Visitors for the University of Maryland's online university.

Mr. Brody earned a Juris Doctorate from Concord Law School, Master of Arts in Organizational Development from the University of Maryland-University College and a Bachelor of Science in Industrial Relations from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.
