AIM

The AIM approach simplifies insider threat program development and applies a unique balance of people, processes and technology.

Assess (A)

A thorough assessment drives an effective plan

Our Insider Threat Experts apply years of experience to properly view an organization from multiple perspectives. We partner with you to assess the agency or department's requirements, policies, risks, assets and resources, then recommend a plan of action for standing up an insider threat program tailored to the specific circumstances of your department or agency. The initial assessment will serve as a baseline, that will be updated as influencing factors change.

Implement (I)

Execution designed to accommodate budget, compliance and operational capacity

Every organization has different resources and assets to address insider threats. Our goal is to proactively help you manage insider threats by implementing a framework of specialized skills, tools and procedures that align with your objectives and resources without compromising operational capacity. We also help you plan for future costs based on tomorrow's needs and prioritize measures that will continue to support 24/7 situational awareness.

Maintain (M)

Insider threat protection built to last

Our experience shows that successful insider threat programs address challenges between maintaining the current systems and preparing for newer capabilities that meet evolving threats. Our Insider Threat Experts apply an approach to prioritize requirements and effectively plan for change within the constraints of your organization's requirements, policies and resources.

Protect

Our ultimate objective is to protect your most important information assets and resources to prevent harm to US interests.

Background

Executive Order 13587 was issued on October 7, 2011 in an effort to initiate structural reforms that would improve the security of classified networks and the responsible sharing and safeguarding of classified information. The Executive Order specifically requires agencies to implement an insider threat detection and prevention program consistent with guidance by the Administration's Insider Threat Task Force.
